Huddersfield Museum	A.23.58	16.5.78	1. What looks like a 'burr de Siret' scar is ground in. Measurements of left side edge, however, assume an original edge similar to present right side edge. 2. Blade edge is not at all sharp, although it does not have a distinct facet. 3. Display label: 'An axe identical to this was found with a Beaker burial at Garton Slack, East Yorkshire'.
